

Our Growing Lives Online: Safe or Not?
The Texas Lyceum in San Antonio
February 4-7, 2010

The Texas Lyceum convenes its first quarterly meeting of 2010 in San Antonio to tackle the sensitive topic of risks associated with our connected lives. Titled “Our Growing Lives Online: Safe or Not?” the weekend will explore the risks we incur by having much of our information available and potentially vulnerable on the Internet. Be it social media, online banking, or buying something on E-bay, increasingly hackers are able to piece together information from disparate sources to put our reputation, finances, and identities at risk.

The centerpiece for the weekend will be the first public debate of the Lyceum’s 2010 “Great Debate” series. The debate, to be televised statewide via public television, will tackle the thorny issue of whether existing laws and technologies adequately protect our data and identities in an online world. Panelists will represent opposing viewpoints in this debate – hackers and privacy advocates who will argue these protections are inadequate, and security leaders and government leaders who will argue that laws and technologies are closing the gap.

The weekend will include interactive and team activities to help Lyceum Directors better understand how these privacy and security risks affect their day-to-day lives. An intended goal of the weekend will be to raise the level of awareness of Lyceum Directors regarding public policy involving online security and privacy.

The backdrop of the conference will be San Antonio and its growing cyber security industry. Acknowledging that San Antonio is becoming an emerging center of computer security activity, the United States Air Force is currently locating its 24th Air Force Cyber Command at the city’s Lackland AFB. Many of these security experts will be participating to drive the discussions and provide real “war stories” from the field.

About us:

The Texas Lyceum is an association of Texans whose purposes are:

1. to identify and develop the next generation of top leadership in the State of Texas;
2. to educate its Directors by identifying and exploring the interrelationships of the major issues facing Texas;
3. to help bring a better understanding of these issues to the state's key decision makers; and
4. to promote an appreciation of the responsibilities of stewardship of the values, traditions, and resources of Texas.

The Lyceum acts as a catalyst to bring together diverse opinions and expertise to focus on national and state issues, and seeks to emphasize constructive private sector, public sector and individual responses to the issues.

To accomplish these purposes, the Lyceum conducts periodic public forums, publishes the Lyceum Journal, produces the Texas Lyceum Poll, and convenes programs for the Directors to explore and discuss key economic and social issues of the state and nation.

The Texas Lyceum is comprised of a Board of Directors from across the state. These 96 men and women have demonstrated leadership abilities not only in their own community, but across the State. They are active, involved and interested; they are eager to contribute their talents and time to the betterment of Texas.
